OUR SCHOOLS

Candor Envirothon team wins title

Candor High School's Envirothon team finished first out of 53 county champions at the eighth annual New York State Envirothon Championship last week at SUNY Cobleskill. It was the team's third consecutive state title and sixth overall, most of any New York team.

Now in its 20th year, the Envirothon is a program of learning and testing in environmental subjects, specifically aquatics, forestry, soils, wildlife and a current issue, which this year is alternative and renewable energy. Candor won the six-event competition with a score of 478.5 out of a possible 600, ahead of second-place Skaneateles. Candor also took first place in two out of the six events, Soil and Oral Presentation.

The 2007 team consists of juniors Toby Heavenrich, Tim Corlett and Aidan Enright, sophomore Stephen Trinidad and freshman Josh Huizinga. They will represent New York at the Canon Envirothon July 29-Aug. 4 at Hobart and William Smith Colleges in Geneva.

For the oral presentation, teams have about 10 hours to develop a presentation on a topic or problem they receive. The top 10 teams win scholarships and Canon products.
